TELEGRAPH NEWS.
The races at Saratoga and Buffalo were postponed until to-day.
The sale of the Northern Pacific railway is postponed to the 12th inst.
President Grant is at Elizabeth, New Jersey, and is stopping at Corbin's.
Judge Boreman charged the jury in the Mountain Meadow massacre case yesterday.
A dispatch from Wilkesbarre states that the coal miners propose another strike.
The Galveston artillery, the oldest military organization in Texas, has decided to attend the Centennial at Philadelphia next July.
Election returns from 51 voting precincts in Texas show a small majority in favor of a constitutional convention. A very light vote was polled.
Moody and Sankey held their closing services yesterday morning and evening at Victoria Hall, Liverpool, before a congregation of thousands of people.
Dr. Gibbs states that the mortality among the poor children of New York is averaging one hundred per cent. daily from cholera-infantum. He calls for volunteer physicians.
The fifteenth annual session of the National Educational Association convened at the Academy of Music in Minneapolis, yesterday. Nearly one thousand persons were present.
Arrangements are in progress to secure all the creditors traveling abroad with letters of credit and circular notes on Duncan, Sherman & Co. They will probably be paid at the Union Bank, London.
John Phillips, colored, one of the murderers of Frank Williams, near Shawnee village, Arkansas, who escaped from the mob which lynched his confederate, John Randolph, has been arrested. He was found mortally wounded.
A large number of prominent Odd Fellows from the United States were present at the dedication of the new Odd Fellows Hall, Monday afternoon, at London. Four hundred from Cleveland received an enthusiastic welcome. A ball and supper wound up the celebration.
Col. J. Stod and Johnson, editor of the Kentucky Yeoman, of Frankfort, was yesterday appointed by Gov. Leslie Secretary of State for Kentucky, vice the Hon. George W. Craddock, resigned on account of his election to represent Franklin county in the next Legislature.
A dispatch from Madrid says: The Alfontist troops continue successful. Several important victories were gained last week. The Carlists are evidently approaching dissolution. Lizarraga, with 3,000 Carlists, is in the citadel at Seo de Urgel. Spanish funds have risen, owing to the improved prospect.
So far as yet heard from the Kentucky election, the Democratic majority in the lower house of the Legislature will be about the same as last year. The returns are coming in very slowly, and no definite statement can be made as to McCreary's majority, or whether the constitutional convention has been carried.
Dwight F. Steene, of Putnam, Connecticut, a young man about twenty-seven years of age, was arrested in Worcester, Massachusetts, for the murder of Frederick White, of Spencer, Massachusetts, at New London, Connecticut, last Wednesday night. He admits that he stabbed the victim five times with a jack-knife, and robbed the body of thirty-one dollars.
Gen. Thompson, Chief State Engineer of Louisiana, says that the Arkansas levees near the Louisiana line are low and in a bad condition, and the Raleigh, Milken's, Orange and Water-proof levees are caving. In about ten days the floods from above will arrive at Red river, and should the levees give way the whole country around Bayou Macon will be overwhelmed.
The jury at Memphis on the Waddy Thompson case, yesterday, reported to Judge Flippin that they could not agree, and were discharged. Judge Flippin held the former bond of $10,000 good, and unforfeited and placed an additional bond of $2,000, which Thompson has failed to give. It is stated that he will apply to Judge Tracey, of the United States District Court, for a writ of habeas corpus.
The Indian Chief Beaverly states that Lee secured the aid of the Indians to kill the emigrants at Mountain Meadow by the offer of clothing, guns and horses; that Lee commanded during the fight; that the Indians had no animosity against the emigrants; that the story of the emigrants poisoning an ox or a spring are all lies; that Lee is a coward and wants to throw all the blame on the Indians.
A letter from the Rev. J. H. Eccleston, of Philadelphia, Bishop elect of the Episcopal diocese of Iowa, states that he had delayed responding to the announcement of his election in May last because of the protest against the manner of his election, and that he has carefully weighed the evidence on both sides and sees no good ground for the charges made. He therefore leaves the final result with the standing committees throughout the country and the houses of bishops.
About 15,000 operatives are idle at Fall River, and probably will be for thirty days, although rumors prevail that work will be resumed in a week. There is a great deal of dissatisfaction and many are willing to go to work, including a good part of the spinners, who heretofore acted as a nucleus. Many storekeepers have given notice that if the help can afford to take a vacation of thirty days they can afford to pay cash for their goods and no credit will be given until they work. Every mill has stopped with the exception of the Stafford, which will soon close.
The Mark Lane Express, reviewing the corn trade, says the cereal crop just reaching maturity, has been saved by fine weather. We may yet have a moderate harvest in good order. The upward movement has stopped and prices have relaxed, partly in consequence of foreign affairs, which are unusually free, but chiefly, raised scarcely reach the average, and are still below those of last year. The harvest in France is progressing rapidly, but general reports indicate less than a fair average yield, although in Paris and Marseilles prices have fallen two shillings. Belgium and the German markets show a similar change. Official accounts of crops in Austria and Hungary show that there is more likelihood of a deficiency than a surplus.

The largest political convention held in Mississippi, was the Democratic State Convention which assembled at Jackson yesterday. Sixty counties were represented, more than three hundred delegates being present, including ex-Governor Brown, Clark and Humphrey. Ex-Governor Clark was elected President by acclamation. While the committee on resolutions were preparing their report, Col. Lamar addressed the convention three hours in the most powerful effort of his life. His opposition to the color line policy may be said to have killed that policy, as soon after on a test vote it was almost unanimously voted down. W. L. Hemingway, chief State granger, was nominated for State Treasurer. The platform is confined to State matters. It recognized to the fullest extent the social and political equality of all men, and asks the aid and votes of all parties in the establishment of a good government. District Commissioners nominated Gen. W. T. Martin in the sixth and Col. O. R. Singleton in the fourth congressional district.

A Black Hills special says that the gold discoveries reported by Prof. Jenney and the miners are daily confirmed by recent prospecting. Prof. Jenney believes the mines in Jenney's gulch will average 3 to 4 cents a pan, which is considered a cautious figure, while the miners along Spring creek place their lowest estimate above that figure, and the maximum is without limit. An immense ferruginous ledge has been discovered, 70 to 80 miles in extent, lying to the north. It promises to be of great value. General Crook has issued a special order requiring all miners and other unauthorized persons to leave the Black Hills, the Powder river, and Big Horn country on or before the 15th of August. Two companies of cavalry and one of infantry are now en route to carry into effect this order in case of opposition. The miners in different parts of the Hills have held meetings and decided to submit and abandon their claims until they can lawfully resume work. It is believed that no trouble will ensue.

The sunshine looks right pleasant.
The Northern Pacific railroad is to be sold on the 12th for the bondholders.
If the Democrats carry Ohio, Tilden's chances for a nomination will be slim.

The inflationists are unable to tell how more greenbacks could be distributed if they were issued.

The Weather Bureau predicts dangerous floods on the Ohio and Mississippi to-day and to-morrow.

Andrew Johnson, when President, refused to accept a present of any kind. But though personally immaculate, his administration will take rank as the most corrupt one in our history.

The Financier believes in euphemism. It speaks of the inflationists as "the green-back enthusiasts," because "they will consider this term less objectionable than the more correct one, paper-maniacs."

We have some reason to boast of our rain fall last week, for it has rarely been beaten in this country; but the rain gauge in Tintin Abbey, in England, showed on the 14th ult. a fall of 5.31 inches in the twelve hours between 9 A. M. and 9 P. M., nearly double ours on last Saturday night.

The fight between civilization and barbarism never ceases. A vast body of men oppose all progress and pull back toward the methods of ignorance and blindness. The contest of rag money is an opposing effort of barbarism against the honesty, good faith and enlightenment of humanity.

It seems likely now that two fast mail trains will be put in operation this fall. The Pennsylvania Central not wishing to be behind the New York Central, and being unable to defeat the arrangement with the latter, will also run one, leaving New York at 8 P. M. The New York Central train will leave at 4 A. M.

The importance of having Indiana thoroughly represented at the Centennial exhibition can not be overestimated. As a public investment, funds contributed for such a purpose will prove remunerative. The Real Estate Exchange can do a good work by thoroughly co-operating with the Centennial Committee in this matter.

The returns of the Kentucky election will probably be in by the first of November. It is fortunate that Kentucky is not "a close State," for if the result of an election was in doubt and had to be settled by some mountain township, the suspense would be too great. Another evidence that things might be a great deal worse than they are.

It was a sad thing to have Andy Johnson die; but the grief of the occasion is somewhat mitigated by the fact that the Associated Press agent, who sent the following in a report of the funeral, yet lives and has a being which may be demolished. His body was committed to the dust, his soul to the God who gave it, and nothing whatever of an unpleasant nature occurred to mar the mournful harmony of the solemn occasion.

SAVING MONEY.
This is the imperative duty of the Council to a city deeply indebted by improvident and corrupt management, in a time of slow business aggravated by a general calamity. The State has just lost millions of dollars by damage to crops, and the city has lost tens of thousands by damaged public works, and the former enhances the value of the latter. If there ever was a time when men of sense were urged by the responsibility of position to practice frugality, this is the time. Our debt alone takes from us more money than the whole city revenue a few years ago, and that, mark you reader, is money wasted. It pays for no work, no property, no public service. It goes for nothing but to cover the scandalous mal-administration which The News reprobated at the outset, and has traced through constantly thickening troubles ever since. Partisan madness, aiding partisan meanness, ran us in debt so that our taxes wouldn't pay our way, and now $110,029 goes for interest on the money borrowed to cover that deficiency. It was a deficiency due wholly to abuses, to wild or premature expenses, to the maintenance of party supremacy, and this $110,000 goes to pay for the use of money to fill it! Wasted as utterly as if it had been salt and tumbled into the river on Sunday. We ask citizens to stop and think of this. Part of that deficit loan went to pay such men as the policemen who parade strumpets on streets and in public places, or the "extras" who were employed to electioneer last May. Part went for such street work as could have been seen on South Meridian street yesterday, and on two or three others last week, where mud was scraped up by a score or more of hands at $800 to $1,000 a week, and left to be flattened back to where it came from. At the least $200,000 went for expenses that were not only not needed, but that did the city a positive mischief. And the upshot of it is a bill of $110,000 to pay this year for nothing, to pay for the use of borrowed money which would not have been borrowed or needed, and $117,584 for next year, to come out of this year's taxes. Altogether, in this year of floods, of ruined crops, of hard times, of a city government that would be shunned by the wisdom of school boys and the honesty of a whisky ring, we are called to pay $227,500 for money borrowed to make good the waste and corruption of partisan Councils. That is the plain English of that item of the year's estimates. The money has been thrown away, and the interest is the fee paid for sending bankers to find it. Up go taxes to $1 50, and still leave the revenue short of the estimated expenses by about $200,000, and short of the actual expenses, judging by the past, by about twice that. Such an administration would be too much for a gold mine, if it couldn't be ended speedily.

A BIG CHANGE
England does not often attempt a reform in any proper sense. Her efforts in that direction are usually patchwork, or reform of special weaknesses or abuses, instead of a reconstruction upon system. The consequence is, that if her changes do no great good, at any one stage, they can't do much harm, and the advantage developed becomes a guide to future effort. The main part of the law or policy affected, is old, and familiarity with that soon brings the addition into easy use. Her constitution has thus become a "thing of shreds and patches," a piece put in here to protect the people against the crown, a piece stuck there to protect the nobility against the people, a piece added in another rotten place to give due power to the popular will. But the patches are all of uniform quality with the original material and each other, and the result is much like Gulliver's Lilliputian clothes, convenient and comfortable, but made of an infinity of bits, like a premium quilt. Or it is more like some of the old manor houses, covered all about with enlargements and improvements stuck on as the convenience of the owner's family suggested, until it is a queer medley, full of little incongruities and inconveniences, but in the mass impressive, safe and comfortable.

Over forty years ago a change of Parliamentary representation was carried, and though by no means thorough, it was so much larger a patch than usual that it was called pre-eminently "The Reform." Ten years ago it was found necessary to reform "the Reform," and now Sir Charles Dilke proves that the re-reform needs re-reforming. His demonstration some time ago of the inequalities of popular representation, would have set an Indiana Legislature wild over an Apportionment Bill and tasked even the impudence of the authors of the Gimber ordinance. It won't be long till this "reform" patch of representation of popular feeling will pretty much replace the whole of the old garment. Between "manhood suffrage" and Dilke's readjustment of burroughs, there won't be much left of the old coat that was so tattered and torn in 1832. Accompanying this, but so far a little more hurried in completion, is the law reform of Romilly and Brougham, first wiping out a horrible mass of murderous—literally—penalties, next by simplifying and the opening proceedings, next by constituting any two of the three courts an appellate tribunal to review decisions of a third and finally by abolishing the great Westminster Courts of Queen's Bench, Common Pleas and Exchequer, and the substitution of one with divisions of jurisdiction corresponding to the original duties of the three, a recognition of the advantages of unity and the uniformity asserted by our State act abolishing Courts of Common Pleas. The Courts of Queen's (or King's, as it happens) Bench is a venerable tribunal, as old as the Conquest, at least, if not in some form still older, and it has been illustrated by the almost uniform incumbency of the greatest learning and integrity ever set to the administration of law in any land. There have been notable exceptions, in Jeffrey and Scroggs, but the great bulk of the judges, chief and minor, both in this and the co-ordinate courts, has comprised only men whose names would honor any age or nation.

THE PROPER STANDARDS OF VALUATION OF LIFE INSURANCE POLICIES.

Few interests in this country involve such a vast amount of money as that of life insurance. Mr. O. W. Chapman, the Superintendent of the Insurance Department in New York, in his last report states that the gross assets of the companies doing business in that State amount to $387,181,896 $1. More than three times this enormous sum—more than one thousand millions of dollars—has been paid by confiding policy holders to the life insurance companies of the United States in the last fifteen years.

No other interest comes so near the hearts or touches the noblest purposes and dearest interests of the best people—the husbands and fathers of the country—as does that of life insurance. No other interest in any way approximating it in importance is so little understood; and no other business of such noble purposes and possibilities is so basely misused. The company that asks the people to choose it as a safeguard and a shield for their wives and little ones when they are dead, should be sound beyond question and beyond doubt.

Last year more than one hundred and twenty-five million dollars were paid for life insurance in the United States. A large portion of this amount was paid on false and fraudulent representations, and for which there was no just and proper consideration; and judging by the experience of the past, not more than one-third of this vast sum will ever find its way back through the channels from which it went out, to the families of those that paid it.

The main object of this article is to show the true standard of valuation, or what is the safe and proper security of a life insurance company. The importance of the consideration of this question is shown by the fact that more than one hundred—one half of all the insurance companies organized in England—have failed; that fifty American companies have failed or transferred their risks, that is, made an assignment, within the last four years. Six years ago ninety-six companies were doing business in Indiana; now less than half their number are reported to our Auditor of State; forty of them having gone "where the woodbine twined." It is high time that the people were warned of the impending danger.

Life insurance involves some problems in mathematics and some theories of science regarding the average duration of human life, which, when understood, the subject can be grasped by any man of ordinary business comprehension. The valuation of policies is the main question, and means by which the security and solvency of a life insurance company are decided. This matter is seldom understood, and never explained by agents in soliciting for insurance. It is declared to be enveloped in such a cloud of darkness that none but the company's actuary is competent to elucidate it. The News will attempt to penetrate this veil of mystery, and point out a way whereby a man of average intelligence can know a solvent insurance company from one that is rotten.

For every person insured by a life insurance company, the company making the insurance must have a certain amount of money—a reserve—to secure the payment of the loss when it occurs. This must be estimated separately for each policy holder. The amount of the reserve depends upon the age of the assured; the plan, whether ordinary, life, ten year, or endowment, and the length of the time the policy has been in force; the rate of interest which the company assumed when its tables were made, and the average mortality—that is the number of persons that would die each year—on some assumed table of mortality, on a given number of persons,—say one hundred thousand.

A company to be solvent must be able to fulfill its contracts. If it agrees to pay your wife five thousand dollars when you die, and is not able to do it, it is plainly insolvent. If its affairs are in such a condition that it certainly can not do this when you die, though it may be twenty years before that event, it is none the less insolvent. Good luck, chance, or careful management may restore its solvency before it is called upon to fulfill its contract, but in such an institution no such risks should be used or permitted. The main test of solvency in life insurance is this: Has the company possession of money enough, if invested and the interest compounded annually, to meet its losses by death, as they will occur, the statistics of mortality being taken as a basis? In other words, is its "reserve" adequate? If the company will, in the course of business, have to pay out five millions of dollars within fifty years, what sum will it take now capitalized at a given per cent. to produce that amount? Is the question put to an examiner. That sum is the reserve, the possession of which guarantees the safety of your investment and the desired aid of your family. Of course it will be seen, a vast deal depends upon the rate of interest allowed. If you wish to invest money enough to secure you $60 a year, $1,000 will do it if you can obtain 6 per cent. If you can get but 4 per cent. it will require $1,500. The lower the rate of interest received the larger amount you will have to capitalize. Life insurance companies in this country estimate that during their natural periods of life they will be able to obtain 4 per cent. and 4½ per cent. interest. Rates now are higher, it is true, but taking the probabilities that fifty or sixty years will materially reduce the rate of interest in this country as it has done in Europe, these figures are considered fair and likely to be correct.

The main question therefore in making a valuation of policies, is what rate of interest shall be allowed. It is conceded by all respectable actuaries and well informed insurance men that four and a half per cent. is the highest rate admissible, and that no safe valuation can be made at a higher rate than that. To show the correctness of this position we make the following quotations from the late report of Superintendent Chapman, of New York: "By reference to the standards adopted in the various States, it will be seen that,

"really, the choice is only between a four and a four and a half valuation." * * * "A high standard of reserves is of very little value as a guarantee of ultimate solvency." * * * "A company tending downward will first strike the higher 'sands of a four.'" * * * "When it does strike, the ship is already in the breakers." * * * "The office performed by a 'legal standard of reserves is simply this: 'It enables the supervising officer to prevent a company which is tending toward 'insolvency from soliciting victims too long.'" * * * "It furnishes a means of 'checking the progress of an incompetent 'or corrupt management. Without it, the 'companies which have been pushed out 'of existence, undoubtedly would be actively soliciting risks to-day, and the end, 'because postponed, would be only the 'more disastrous.'" * * *

Mr. Chapman wisely suggests that every State should exclude any company from doing business "unable to reserve on accumulations of four per cent.," and to "stop doing new business if unable to meet 'that.'" * * * "Thus the alarm bell is 'struck and the warning given so soon as 'the highest standard (4½ per cent. interest) is passed.'" * * * "If the reserve lessens to 'a four and a half per cent. it must stop 'new business, and therefore another 'warning is given.'" * * * "After a six 'per cent. gauge shall indicate that there 'is no longer hope."

The Franklin Life, a company organized and doing business in this city, has recently been valued, "weighed in the balance." Let us apply the tests and see whether or not it was "found wanting." What does the committee appointed to examine its affairs say in the report of the Board of Directors?

The result of the summing up of the condition of the Company discloses the fact that the assets, all that we can consistently admit to be at present available as against present liabilities, computed upon a basis of 4½ per cent. fall short about $15,000.

That is that after paying its debts and computing its assets upon the highest rate known to mutual companies it lacks nearly fifteen thousand dollars of having enough reserve to secure its policy holders. In ordinary business when a man can't pay his debts he is insolvent, and that is exactly the condition of the Franklin Life Insurance Company judged by its own statement. Can any doubt, after reading these extracts from the report of the New York Commissioner, which is an acknowledged standard in all that pertains to life insurance, what he would say to the Franklin Life if she should attempt to do business in New York? He would tell her officers, as the committee did that examined her condition, that upon a four and a half per cent. valuation she was insolvent, and must stop doing business. Fortunately for the people of New York a company making such a showing would be closed up at once. Unfortunately for the people of Indiana, there is no law in this State to prevent the Franklin Life Insurance Company from continuing to do business except that higher law made by an intelligent people, which will say to this Company, "You must secure your policy holders, or you must cease to do business."

The Bridge of Life.

Across the rapid stream of seventy years,
The slender bridge of human life is thrown;
The past and future form its mouldering piers;
The present moment is its frail keystone.

From "Just thou art" the arch begins to rise,
To dust the fashion of its form descends,
"Shalt thou return," the higher curve implies,
In which the first to the last lowness bends.

Seen by youth's magic light upon that arch,
How lovely does each fair of scene appear!
But ah! how changed when on the onward march,
Our weary footsteps bring the vision near!

'Twas fabled that beneath the rainbow's foot
A treasure lay, the dreamer to bewitch;
And thus the arch in air and water makes
The golden years that would have made them rich.

So where life's arch of many colors leads,
The heart expects rich wealth of joy to find;
But in the distance the bright hope recedes,
And leaves a cold gray waste of care behind.

A sunlit stream upon its bosom takes
The shadowed path of a bridge on high,
And thus the arch in air and water makes
One perfect circle to the gazer's eye.

So 'tis with life; the things that do appear
Are fleeting shadows on time's passing tide
Cast by the sunshine of a higher sphere
From viewless things that changelessly abide.

The real is but the half of life; it needs
The ideal to make a perfect whole;
The sphere of sense is incomplete, and pleads
For closer union with the sphere of soul.

All things of use are bridges that conduct
To things of faith, which give them truest worth;
And Christ's own parables do us instruct
That heaven is but the counterpart of earth.

The pier that rests upon the shore's the same
That flung its shadow upon the further bank;
And fitness for our duties here will frame
A fitness for the joys of higher rank.

Ah! dark were life without heaven's sun to show
The likeness of the other world in this;
And here and yonder would be our lot below
Without the shadow of a world of bliss.

Then let us, passing o'er life's fragile arch,
Regard it as a means, and not an end;
As but the path of faith on which we march,
To where all glories of our being tend.

THE MACINTIRE INVESTIGATION
More Damaging Evidence Against the Prosecution.

C. J. Howland testified at the afternoon session of the MacIntire Investigating Board yesterday, that his son (Charles) and E. G.
Kettner had visited his house one Saturday of February last and remained there until after 10 o'clock at night. The date of their visit is the time which Ida Fawcner testified to having held the interview with Valentine at the Institute, in which, as she alleges, he compelled her to swear she never reveal his name as being her seducer.

On the supposition that Valentine could not have been at both places at the same time,
the evidence of Ida loses much of its force.

after she began to recover from her illness,

TO-DAY'S SESSION.
The full Board met at 9 o'clock to-day,
and Miss Ida Price, of Seymour, was introduced by the defense. She had been an inmate of the Institute six years, and was quite intimately connected with Ida Fawcner. Ida and myself occupied the same bedroom at the Institute for the past two years, and Ida told me last winter that her uncle, John E. Fawcner, had seduced her at his house last October. Saw Ida take medicine in the spring and fall of 1874, which she said had been given her by her uncle for pimples. Mr. MacIntire never took any improper liberties with me at any time, and Ida first showed me the instruments February 6. An exhaustive cross-examination failed to bring out any contradictory statements from this witness, who
on redirect examination said that some time
between Christmas and last New Year's Ida
had made her swear not to reveal what she
(Ida) had told her about being seduced by
her uncle, John E. Fawcner.

Election Day Police.
The greater the development, the more outrages the action of the Police Board in the appointment of the election day police, which are now known to number 311, besides the parties paid from Democratic funds and told to skip. The roll as yet has not been filed with the City Clerk, but will be to-morrow, and then the list will be open to public inspection. In several instances the Board selected the worst specimens of hoodlumism and dead beatism to preserve "law and order," and it is reported that on that day badges will furnish Commission and their friends to adorn the coat-lappets of this or that individual who would be particularly zealous in statements from this witness, who
on redirect examination said that some time
between Christmas and last New Year's Ida
had made her swear not to reveal what she
(Ida) had told her about being seduced by
her uncle, John E. Fawcner.

THE WONDERFUL MACHINE.

OFFICE OF INDIANAPOLIS MECHANICAL JOURNAL.
J. H. KERICK, Editor and Manager.
INDIANAPOLIS, JUNE 20, 1875.
Messrs. HUTCHINSON & Co., Gentles: We have had the Type Writer in use a little more than a week, and during that time have used it for our correspondence and in our editorial writing. We are very much pleased with its operation, and although our brief practice has not made us expert so much in its use, we are able to write nearly double the work in a given time that we can do by hand or with the pen. Our letters copy to better advantage in the copy book than when written with the ordinary copying ink, and the letter itself presents a much better appearance. We had no difficulty in learning to use it, even though we had no special instruction; and are really surprised that work so much can be accomplished upon so simple and compact a machine. There appears to be no wear upon any of the working parts that would necessitate repairs for years.
Very respectfully yours, etc.,
J. H. KERICK, Publisher.

THE HIGH WATERS.

White River on the Decline—Status of the Railroad.

White river is slowly but almost imperceptibly falling, and if the elements continue propitious, will soon resume its wanted proportions.

The measurement at the Water Works indicate a decline of about half an inch an hour since 6 o'clock this morning and lacks yet some eight inches of reaching the highest point of the June freshet.

Another batch of driftwood has lodged against the center pier of the new Washington street bridge, but no serious damage is anticipated as the current has modified very considerable. Large numbers of fish, which had congregated in the vicinity of the Water Works steam pipe, came floating to the surface to day in a partially spoiled state, and were gratuitously distributed to such as desired them.

McCarthy's levee has successfully withstood the waters of the past week, much of which was owing to the determined energy of that gentleman, who has kept a large force of men continually at work repairing and strengthening every weak point the moment it became visible.

The eastern approach to the Morris street bridge is sadly out of repair and needs immediate attention, as does also the upper end of the canal, which has been damaged to a greater extent than was at first supposed.

Railway travel has been very irregular since Sunday, in one or two instances necessitating the abandoning of trains temporarily.

The Bee Line, Pan Handle, C. H. & D. I.
& L. and Peru railroads are in running order again, and were more fortunate than the South and West roads.

The Vincennes will not be in condition to resume travel before the last of the week,
and the Vandavia announce no trains over their road to-day.

The I. & St. L. sent out its first through train at 2:30 this afternoon.

The Jeff. Road manages to run its trains with considerable difficulty, owing to the break at Jonesville.

The I. R. W. management announce that they will send out a through train some time during the day.

A strong force of men are actively engaged in putting in repair the several damaged roads, and it is confidently expected by the ast of the week to have everything in running order.

Sons of Honor.
The expected excursion of colored folks
from Louisville did not put in an appearance to-day, owing to the inclement condition of the Jeff. road south of Columbus.

The local members of the Sons of Honor assembled at the Exposition this afternoon and are spending the day in speech making and out-door sports.

The New French Piano.
[Paris Letter to the Philadelphia Bulletin.]
The new inventor comes from a quarter well entitled to credit on such a subject, the head of the celebrated house of Pleyel, Wolff & Co. Every musician, nay every one who pretends to have an ear for music, must be aware how a great drawback to the increase of sound obtained by the forte pedal arises from the cacophonous and disor-dant melody of tones which is thereby also produced, and which can scarcely be called "in sweet confusion, blended." To remedy this most disagreeable effect, M. Wolff has invented what he calls the "tonal" or "harmonic" pedal, which only holds or prolongs
the sound of notes in harmony with what the performer is executing. The means by which this improvement is obtained are very simple. It is effected by a smaller keyboard placed above the ordinary one and handled in the same way, only with the difference that every key touched remains down, to intimate that the note is prolonged,
as well as all the similar notes in the instrument; thus, if "A" is down, all the "A's" are prolonged, etc. This smaller key-board can be worked with the same facility as the organist works the stops of an organ. But it is strictly an "improvement," not an "increase of power," or range, in the instrument. Where "loudness" alone is required, the forte pedal must still be used. But for delicacy and purity of expression the "tonal"
pedal offers an advantage.
